Arragan

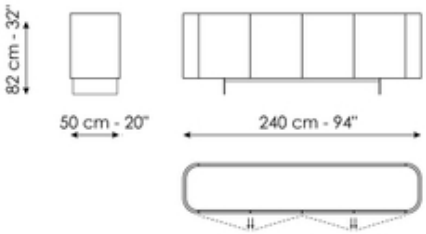

Designer: Gabriele & Oscar Buratti

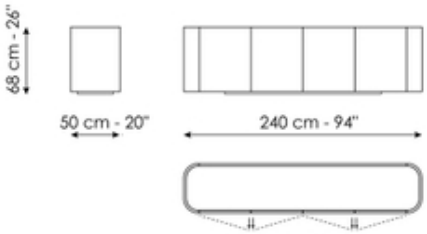

The Arragan High and Arragan Low sideboards designed by Gabriele and Oscar Buratti stand out on account of their formal synthesis in which the softness of the lines and the continuity of the surfaces imbue them with a unique sculptural and harmonious identity. These elegant sideboards are configured as an architectural volume capable of interacting with the surrounding space, both as a wall element and as a double-sided divider, redefining the perception of the environment.

Made of gloss or matt painted wood with an additional top in ceramic material or the same finish as the rest of the piece, Arragan High and Arragan Low emphasize the material detail through an essential language. The lowered top takes on the function of a tray, made unique by the tapered detail of the door, which becomes a handle, adding distinctiveness to the design. Our elegant modern sideboards are available with a blade or plinth base depending on the different design needs. Their frame, balanced between volumes and proportions, allows the user to enhance the space with elegance, constantly maintaining a marked but never invasive presence. These elements enrich the environment, integrating naturally into contexts with either a minimal or a more decorative character.
