BONALDO

Tangeri

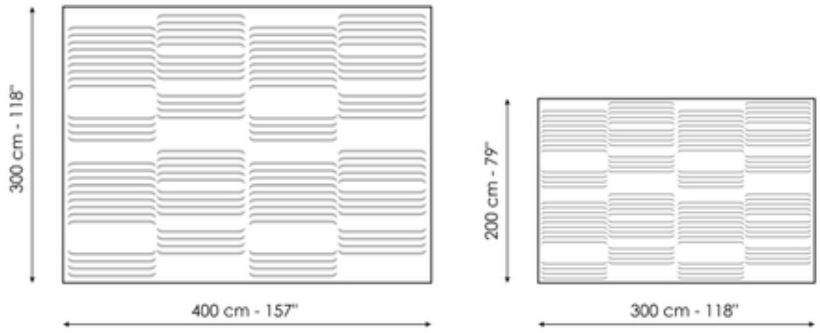

The design of the Tangeri rug tells a story. The relief pattern is in fact inspired by the graphic design of a tile dating back to the 1970s which is still part of the floors of the Bonaldo headquarters in Villanova di Camposampiero, in the province of Padua. The lines are replicated parallels with a slight curve that looks like a step and which creates a three-dimensional effect. The motif is geometric, but at the same time gives a sensation of movement and volume, almost as if it were a bas-relief marking out the surface. The use of two materials, wool and Tencel, gives an elegant and refined tone on tone effect and the result is a small part of Bonaldo's history that comes to life in this piece of furniture which enriches the living space or the dining area, but which is also perfect for the sleeping area.
